

I support the Indiana telephone privacy act as it stands. An "established business relationship" should not allow a company to legally harrass me with sales pitches and offers on my telephone. There are better and less invasive methods for contacting me with any "business" which does not relate directly to existing business.